Vaspian and Common Voices to Provide Telecom Services to Board of Realtors

Partnership to Give Board of Realtors State-of-Art Communications Technology

Cambridge, Massachusetts and Buffalo, New York, July 26, 2005 -- Common Voices and Vaspian today announced that they have enhanced their product offerings to provide telecommunications services to the Board of Realtors in Western New York. Buffalo-based Vaspian will use Cambridge-based Common Voices' NowMessage™ Universal Messaging application and NowConnect™ Automated Attendant feature as part of Vaspian's X-Tone™ IP Telephony service. This new combination of services creates a state-of-the-art communications package for the Board of Realtors staff and members. In addition to high quality telephone service with Unified Messaging, the Board will use NowMessage to provide updates to members, such as information on licensing requirements and events.

Brian Hurley, President and CEO of Vaspian, stated, "We are excited about the improved services we can offer our customers using Common Voices' innovative technology. It is important for Board of Realtors' members to be able to handle calls in an efficient manner since voice communication is critical to their business. Common Voices' Unified messaging software together with our X-Tone services network, will allow us to exceed their high expectations." Vaspian provides and markets its services to small and medium sized businesses throughout the United States.

Todd Hasselbeck, Common Voices' CEO, added, "This is a unique and creative application of our software because it takes advantage of NowMessage's alternate ID capability, allowing a subscriber to have any number of separate phone numbers leading to the same voice mailbox. Board of Realtors' members who choose this service will have all their messages in a common mailbox – their office phone, Board of Realtors mailbox, cell phone, and email can all be integrated into a single message store. This is a great productivity tool for mobile professionals, such as realtors."
