Common Voices to Highlight New Technology at Fall VON 2005

Migration and Messaging Products to be Demonstrated in Booth #1245 at Boston Convention Center September 19-22

Cambridge, Massachusetts, September 14, 2005 -- Common Voices today announced that it will exhibit its messaging and migration solutions for carriers in Booth #1245 at the Fall VON Expo in Boston September 19-22nd. The show will take place at the Boston Convention Center.

The VON conference will mark the first large scale demonstration of Now Move™, Common Voices' patent pending technology that provides real time migration of stored voice messages, greetings, passcodes and other data from legacy networks to next-generation, VoIP-based networks. This removes a considerable barrier that is currently slowing the transition of both Enterprise and consumer customers to VoIP networks.

NowMove, together with NowThere™ and NowChange™, is part of a suite of migration services offered by Common Voices. It allow carriers to migrate their customers to new services seamlessly, helping to reduce customer churn, attract new customers, and lower marketing, operational and call center costs. The company also offers a voice XML-based Unified Messaging product, NowMessage™, designed to help wireless and wireline carriers provide next generation services to their customers.

"VON is the essential trade show for VoIP industry players and has emerged as the main gathering place for our partners, OEM's and carrier customers," stated Todd Hasselbeck, Common Voices' CEO. "We are looking forward to showing our latest migration capabilities to the progressive carriers and system integrators that will be in Boston. In addition, because Common Voices is based in Cambridge, MA, Fall VON gives us the opportunity to engage our Developers and Architects directly with industry leaders at both the sessions and exhibits."

Common Voices' Vice President of Business Development, Michael Chung, will also participate in a panel discussing Developing Products for the Mainstream Market on Thursday, September 22nd, from 3:00pm to 4:15pm.

About Fall VON

VON is the definitive IP communications Conference and Expo, now in its 9th year, attracting over 7,500 communications industry executives from 40+ countries worldwide. Fall VON brings all the players in the converging communications landscape together, at the most senior level, to map out the future. With 300+ speakers across 4 days, and 6 parallel streams of breakouts covering both strategic and technical issues, the show provides a forum for understanding the challenges and opportunities ahead for carriers and others in the telecommunications industry. More information on VON is available at www.von.com, including an agenda at www.von.com/schedule.
